

THE LIGHTBULB PROGRAMME for Supervisors & Line Managers

Giving You the Confidence and Skills to Manage your Team

Chances are, when you were asked as a child what you wanted to do when you grew up, you didn't answer 'People Manager'! So how come you've found yourself in that role?

I suspect you were promoted into the role because you were really good at what you did previously. But being a great employee doesn't automatically mean you know how to be a great people manager. The good news is, managing people is a skill, and skills can be learnt. So if you're looking to increase your confidence and competence in your role the lightbulb programme could be for you.

The Lightbulb Programme is for you if any of these resonate:

- You are new to the role of managing people
- You're an experienced manager but are unclear on your role
- You ask people to do things, but don't get the right outcomes
- You'd like to be more confident in your role
- You want to host better one-to-one meetings
- You've been told you're too blunt or too timid
- You put off giving feedback
- Or you simply want support to succeed in your role

"Nikie has changed my life at work! She has worked with us in building trust and open communication within the management team. It has completely changed our communication style and has had a great impact on our moral."

Hana ~ Senior Manager

The Solution...

The Lightbulb programme focuses on the 4 key topics that make the biggest difference to Supervisors and Line Managers confidence and competence when dealing with people. It's called the Lightbulb programme because people literally have lightbulb moments when everything clicks into place!

1. The ROLE of a Supervisor/Line Manager in YOUR company
2. How to COMMUNICATE with EVERYONE better
3. Getting people to actually DO STUFF
4. Be CONSISTENTLY GOOD at managing people

The Business Case for Investing in this Programme

Manager development is a critical part of building and sustaining a successful businesses, but how do you know which development is going to give you the biggest return on investment and be a good fit for your managers and your company ?

Frequently Asked Questions - To help you with your decision

Does my managers really need training?

Yes. No matter what the job, people need guidance and support to understand their role and how to do it to the best of their ability. You can of course choose to train them yourself, creating plenty of opportunities for your managers to learn and grow on the job. The down side to this is they are only learning from the knowledge that is already present in the workplace. This doesn't allow for new ideas or growth, it simply creates copycat managers. Investing in external training allows managers to gain new insights, and explore their own version of managing people.

What are the expect outcomes of the programme?

The programme covers four heading which when broken down covers:

The ROLE of a Line Manager in YOUR company. OUTCOME: To be able to confidently explain their role as a line manager and prioritise at least 2 areas of development.

How to COMMUNICATE with EVERYONE better. OUTCOMES: To be able to identify their own communications preference and those of other stakeholder in the business. To explore current communication activities with their team and possible improvements.

Getting people to actually DO STUFF. OUTCOMES: To be able set clear expectations for all, and follow this through with effective 121 meetings

Be CONSISTENTLY GOOD at managing people. OUTCOMES: To be about to match direct reports talents to tasks with positive results. To be able to give formal and informal feedback.
